The Penderson Reception Last Night.—
Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, a large crowd assembled at the corner of Eighth and Sycamore-atreets last night, for the purpose of welcoming Hon. Geo. H. Pendleton, Representative from the First Congressional District, who has recently returned from Washington.

The meeting was organized by the appointment of the following officers.

President—Chas. Rule.
Vice-Presidents—Wm. Maxwell, Samuel D. Hirst, L. Katenkamp, D. J. Toohey, J. H. Walker, O. P. Thorpe, W. F. Glass, E. Keeshan, J. J. Dobmeyer, Col. F. Linck.
Secretaries—Wm. Hart, Alfred Korte, J. W. Burke.

The welcoming speech was delivered by Mr. Alfred Korte, who went into a lengthy exposition of popular sovereignty, giving an extended history of the manner in which it had been received by the Democratic party, particularly the Southern wing, with whom it was once a favorite dogma.

A glee club then entertained the audience with a song, which, no doubt, would have been capital, had it not been wretched doggerel, more wretchedly sung.

Mr. Pendleton then came forward, amid loud cheers, and after thanking the people for their kindness he lanched out into a discussion of the following political topics of the day:

1. The organization of Congress.

for their kindness he lanched out into a discussion of the following political topics of the day:

1. The organization of Congress.
2. The Covode and other Committees.
3. Utah and Kansas.
4. The Public Printing.
5. The Tariff.
6. The Presidency.
With reference to the first point, he merely glanced at the history of the organization of the House, and then proceeded to a discussion of the House, and then proceeded to a discussion of the Covode Committee, which he said had ransacked the country over, spent $50,000 more in printing, and then adjourned over to next winter, without making a report. He said these committees were merely gotten up for partisan purposes, with a view of influencing elections. One of them, without any sufficient foundation, introduced resolutious censuring the Administration.

He ridiculed the bill abolishing polygamy in Utah, and likewise the one atolishing slavery in New Mexico. He had voted for the admission of Kansas, and the bill had passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate, through, as he supposed, the negligence of Republican Senators; or at least, he could not account for it on any other ground. He gave a history of the election of Public Printer, and spoke of the extravagance of the Republicans in ordering the printing of books for which there was no necessity. He omitted to mention the bills for the establishment of a Government printing-office, and likewise the one refincing the rinting and likewise the one refincing the rates now paid, forty per cent; but this, no doubt, arose from a want of time to go into minuta.

He opposed the Morrill tariff as unequal and unjust; it entirely neglected the interests of the North-west. He thanked God, however, the new apportionment would make that long-neglected section a power in future.

He gave his unqualified adhesion to Douglas as the regular candidate of the ture.

He gave his unqualified adhesion to Douglas as the regular candidate of the Democratic party, after which he retired, and gave place to other speakers, who detained the audience for some time, after which it dispersed.

secrets of the action of water, having, probably, been dropped in one of their marine expeditions, for which, it is eaid, they are constantly practised in swimming.

Availing ourselves of the learning which has been flung around with so much looseness in the leavestigation of the Holfy-stone, in one of our city papers, and of such vague bints as have been dropped by members of the Order who have examined theer clics, we are able to give some very scientific theories in regard to them. "It is utterly incredible that they were prepared and deposited for a boax; but it is possible, and highly probable." They may have been designed to "extort money" from the Sons of Malta. Those who have passed through the trying ordeal are peculiarly susceptible to such schemes, If they were intended to extort money from the Order, they were deposited by an "unworthy" Son. If they belonged to a worthy Son, they are "precious relics."

A Son, whose learning and research have reached so far into the past that Hebrow is his "vernacular," and Egyptian his native tongue, pronounces them of Hebrew origin, and that they were probably brought by the Hebrews in their escape from Egypt. This establishes the immense antiquity of the Order, and shows that the Sons were sold in Egypt 4,000 years ago quite as badly as they were in the recent revival of the Order.

We have devoted much of our valuable space to an investigation of these discoveries, and have brought to the subject a degree of learning corresponding to it and to our metropolitan facilities. If they throw any light on the great eternal problem—What are we? and how came "e so! and why were we not made different? our labor will not have been in vain. If they turn out to be a humbug and a sell, we shall have the proud consciousness that we "have discharged our duty as a journalist."

Van Amburgh's Circus and Menagerie—
The Procession To-day,—This mammoth establishment will pitch its tent to-day upon the City Lot. It is said to be one of the best of its kind in the country, and would, therefore, seem to deserve the patronage of the public. Its corps of gymnests, equestrians and acrobats is excellent, and is comprised of a large number of French, English and American actors. Prominent among the attractions that Van Amburgh offors his patrons, is Tippoo-Saib, the monster elephant, and a number of trained hone, Brazilian and black tigers. African and Aslatic leopards, which execute, at command, a variety of astonishing feats.

A grand procession of the circus and menagerie will take place this afternoon, leaving the City Lot at one o'clock and passing first, on Ninth to Mound, south on Mound to Sixth, east on Sixth to Plum, south on Plum to Fifth, east on Fifth to Race, south on Race to Fourth, east on Fourth to Walnut, south on Walnut to Third, east on Third to Main, south on Main to the Landing, east on the Landing to Broadway, north on Broadway to Fifth, west on Fifth to Main, north on Main to the Mohawk Bridge, south on Central-avenue to the City Lot.

Appropriate Medical Symbol.—A medical friend of ours, whose practise is extremely large and very good, using the term in its primitive sense, has a delicate little imitation of Death's head, about half an inch in diameter, cut in ivory, which he wears, as a charm, upon his watch-chain. We recommend the custom to the profession generally, not only as a mark of their business, but as an indication of its usual results.

Another Rural Elepement—A Disappointed Husband.

A very unsophisticated couple, from one of the interior counties in Kentucky, arrived at the Spencer House evening before last, to be married. They stated that they had eleped from home, and had no time for preparation—an allegation sustained by the scantiness of their wardrobe. They had come away with no other raiment than that upon their persons, and having ridden forty or fifty miles on one lorse to the nearest station of the Kentucky Central Railroad, they had reached the city in a singular plight.

The bridgeroom, that was to be, went to supper, but before he had swallowed three mouthfuls, leaped up from the table, and saying he could not wait, ran out of the hotel, and springing into a carriage, ordered the backman to drive wherever a minister could be found.

They soon obtained a clergyman, and the rural twain were united in the drawing-room of the hotel, much to the amusement of the lookers-on; indeed, any one would have smiled to see the extreme gaucheric and awkward embarrassment of the bucolic pair. The husband was delighted after the cersmony had terminated, but was doomed to a severe disappointment. About eleven o'clock the sister of his wife arrived and insisted upon having a room with the bride, which for some reason or other rendered Mr. Verdant highly indignant and kept him walking the corridors of the Spancer all night; pausing every few

A JUVENILE HETEROCLITE.—Children often have strange ideas, and with pertinently impertinent questions seldom fall to puzzle the most learned and orthodox. A little fellow, about four years of age, whose parents reside in the western part of the city, knelt upon a chair, yesterday afternoon, during the thunder-storm, gazing out of the window at the pelting rain, and suddenly startled his mother with the cry, "O, mamma, come look at the ice-balls."

She complied with his request, and said,
"My son, that is hail."
"Hail?" asked he. "Well, ma, where does hail come from?"

"From Heaven," replied the mother. "God sends it."

"Well tell me, ma," still inquired the precocious juvenile, "where does God get the ice?"

The same boy, a few days ago, was somewhat annoyed by flies, and at length becoming impatient, being compelled continually to drive them from his face, neck and arms, he inquired suddenly of his mother, "where they came from?"

"Oh," replied the mother, "God makes them."

"Oh, replied the mother, "God makes them."
"Well, ma, I wish he'd quit, don't you?" said he in a tone that showed the earnestness and heartiness of his desire.

The mother found that she could not make him understand the necessity for these creations; and the boy will probably live long enough to learn that the existence of men is about as useless as he now regards that of flies and hail.

Prof. Henry T. Crawley, was rearrested yesterday.

It is alleged that the darger which was found in a yard adjacent to where the murder was committed, has been identified as the property of Millea, and was seen in his possession on the night of the murder. The prisoner, it will be recollected, has already been identified as being one of the party of four who were in the coffee-house near the scene of the murder, some twenty minutes previous thereto.

From the new testimony that has been discovered, Constables Hazen and Daylor have no doubt that the accused is the really guilty party.

The examination of Millea will take place before Justice Marchant, next Friday, at

The examination of Miliea will take place before Justice Marchant, next Friday, at which time we heartily hope the prisoner may satisfactorily establish his innocence, or that the officer may succeed in proving him guilty. His performance is so free from the claytrape bring the little ones to witness an entertainment which, we have no doubt, will puzzle the brain of childhood as much as it does that

SAD AND SINGULAR CASE OF DROWNING.—A lad about eight years of age, named Joseph P. Alcroft, whose parents reside on Fifthstreet, between Vine and Race, was discovered yesterday afternoon, in the mouth of the sewer at the foot of Plum-street, quite dead. He was immediately carried to the residence of his parents, and Coroner Carey summoned to hold an inquest; but the mother was satisfied that the lad's death was the re-was satisfied that the lad's death was the result of an unavoidable accident, and the investigation was not beld.

It appears that in company with some boys about his own age, after the thunderstorm of yesterday afternoon, he was playing in the water that was rushing down the Plumstreet gutter, when its velocity threw him down and carried him into and almost through the sewer before he could be reacued. We have never heard of a parallel to this case, and it furnishes an excellent warning against this species of juvenile smusement.

ARREST OF AN ALLEGED MAIL ROBBER.—
United States Deputy Marshal Manson, yesterday arrested a young man named Oliver, at Oxford, Butier County, Ohio, upon a charge of robbing the mail. The warrant was issued at the instance of Mr. Garver, mail agent at Indianapolis, who suspected him of having manufactured keys with which to open the bags, and, as he was one of the mail contractors, he had an excellent opportunity to practice the business in which he is said to have been engaged. He was taken before United States Commissioner Newhall, who held him to bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance to answer the charge next Friday. next Friday.

The defect here, however, is that the mittimus, under which the party is confined, states he was brought before a Justice of the Peace; and as he is held only by that mittimus, and the act under which the magistrate acted has been repealed, this petitioner is not now held by the Sheriff by virtue of any legal process. On that ground, therefore, he must be discharged.

Immediately on the decision being announced, Larry Hazen touched Millea on the shoulder and desired him to come with him. Millea stood up and was led along by the arm for a short distance by Hazen, who released his hold on finding the party went quietly along. Mr. Hazen did not state at the time on what charge he made the arrest, but it was known to a few present that it was on a charge of being concerned in the murder of the late Mr. Crawley.

ANOTHER DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR. — Day before yesterday, while the patrons of the John's Hill School were erecting a bell upon, and repairing the house, a number of our citizens, among whom was Dr. Foster, visited them, with a view of enlightening them on the subject of politics; but before reaching the place the Doctor had become so badly inebriated that he was ready to do any desperate deed, and the result was that he soon became engaged in a pugilistic encounter with a Mr. Digby, a Douglas man, who beat him so severely that he is now confined to his bed. Whether Mr. Digby be legally excused or not, we can not say, but, morally speaking, we think he is blancless. Foster has been so insolent recently that a chastisement became necessary, and, as the officers refused to act in the premises, private persons necessarily assumed the responsibility.
